WHO CARES?

No One Seems To Take Screenshots As Seriously As You.

Screenshots might play a critical role in compliance for your business. Maybe they're key to delighting your customers or illustrating your commitment to quality. Done well, screenshots provide a competitive edge in research, reporting and marketing.

You know it's far too easy for screenshots to go wrong in every case.

Designers wince at blocky fonts and layout misalignments. Screenshots look like someone hit print screen in Windows 95 just before a blue screen of death.

Unengaging

Marketers hold back from sharing content on the channels they could. The auto-generated images they have just don't have the edge they used to have.

Inconsistent

Researchers and analysts worry about distracting ads, banners, widgets and popups. They'll need to revisit every web page to have any confidence in their insights.

Inflexible

Engineering teams complain about the lack of control. 'Simple' rendering errors go unfixed for months, services go down for hours with no explanation.

Insecure

Security teams raise concerns about data privacy and retention. No one is confident about where and when screenshots are being taken, how they are stored or for how long.

Unsupported

Customers, and everyone else, badger you with screenshot issues. You wait days for support from vendors who spend less time thinking about screenshots than your accountant.

Designers confidently use the screenshots for entries into design awards.

Inspiring

The sales team praises the marketing team for their ability to personalise and repurpose so much great content.

Predictable

Every week clients rave about the new insights researchers and analysts are presenting in visually stunning reports.

Comprehensive

Every time an engineer discovers a new screenshotting edge case, they learn there's a ready to use solution for it.

The screenshot shows a live chat window. At the top, there's a header with a microphone icon and the word "Chat". Below it, a profile picture of a man with a beard and the text "Jonathan from Urlbox". To the right of the profile picture is a vertical ellipsis menu. On the left side of the main chat area, there's a small blue logo with a white 'U' and the word "Urlbox". A dark blue message bubble contains the text "Any question about Urlbox?". The user's message, timestamped "Thursday, 15 August", reads: "I have a div with id bigDiv that I don't want shown when I screenshot a page. How can I hide it?". Jonathan's response follows: "Include this option in your request:
"hide_selector": "#bigDiv"

In a Render Link that would be an extra parameter like so:
hide_selector=%23bigDiv". At the bottom of the chat window, there's a text input field with placeholder text "Compose your message..." and three small icons: a smiley face, a link, and a video camera.
